COUNSELING

Valley Trauma Center offers free counseling services to survivors of sexual assault and their significant others. Counseling is provided by Master's level students and interns who are overseen by licensed clinical supervisors. The counselors are skilled, compassionate women and men who can meet with you and your loved ones, who may also be struggling with their own feelings. We offer eight free sessions, with additional sessions considered on a case-by-case basis and provided for a sliding-scale fee.

Types of Counseling Provided

Occasionally, clients are referred elsewhere for counseling services. This is often because there is a special circumstance, which Valley Trauma Center counselors are not equipped to address. For example: Survivors who may have long-term drug abuse problems or complex mental health issues are referred to other centers for stabilization, or are sometimes treated in conjunction with help from other centers.

Valley Trauma Center is committed to providing services based on a survivor's needs and wants, with the intention of wellness and health as the underlying goal.
